He was taken into custody by H. W. Allen, court bailiff, and turned over to Jailer McDougle. Snooks already was in jail and Judge Sears ruled that the twelve days he has spent in jail apply on his prison sentence. Counsel for Davey announced that he would ask the supreme court for a writ of certiorari. As there is no bond on appeal from Judge Anderson's ruling until the supreme court passes on the application for the writ, Davey must remain in jail until a writ is granted. It is not probable that an appeal will be taken in the Snooks case. His request to Judge Sears that his jail sentence apply on his prison time indicates that he is willing to begin his sentence. Davey was found guilty after witnesses had testified that they had bought beer and whisky at his drug store. Policemen also gave testimony that they found liquor in the store when they raided the place.
